HOPS FOR PILLOW FILLING

Austrian Peasant Woman Recommends Them for Their Efficiency as Sleep Inducer and Beautifier.

A man who suffered from sleeplessness picked up in Austria recently what seemed to him to be the best remedy he had ever found. It was nothing more or less than a pillow stuffed with hops. An Austrian peasant woman recommended it not alone as a sleep producer but as a beautifier as well.

Returning to this country the man bought some New York hops, famous for their beer making qualities, but to his surprise they did not work as well as the hops he had tried abroad. He found out by experiment that hops that made good beer didn't necessarily produce good sleep.

After he had sampled a lot of different kinds of hops he found that by mixing hops grown in Bohemia with hops grown in California and Oregon he got a combination which seemed to answer all purposes in the sleep producing line.

He decided that he had hit it right when he took a couple of pillows he had stuffed with this combination in his office downtown home with him on the elevated. He got in at Rector street carrying the pillow and sat in one of the double seats. Two men and a messenger boy sat with him.

At Fifty-ninth street all three were in profound slumber. Several other persons who had been reading newspapers near him were in evident distress in their efforts to keep awake.

Inquiry at different drug stores seemed to indicate that the hop pillow idea was a new one, though hops have long been known to have sleep inducing qualities, as shown particularly in the case of beer. According to those who have tried hop pillows, you get all the soporific qualities of the hops in this way without breaking any temperance pledges or suffering any harmful effects.

LADY MACBETH LOVES CHOPS

Butcher Attributes Genius of Artist and Actress to Fact They Eat His Meat.

It is not altogether easy to imagine a Lady Macbeth eating chops. Yet her greatest impersonator got her inspiration from them, if one may rely on a somewhat occasion, writes Mr. E. V. Lucas in his recent book, "The Second Post," the painter Haydon paid his butcher, who reciprocated by expressing great admiration for the artist's painting of "Alexander."

"Quite alive, sir!" said the butcher. "I am glad you think so," said the artist.

"Yes, sir; but as I have often said to my sister, you could not have painted that picture, sir, if you had not eat my meat, sir."

"Very true, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, I have a fancy for gen'us, sir."

"Have you, Mr. Sowerby?"

"Yes, sir. Mrs. Siddons, sir, has eat my meat, sir. Never was such a woman for chops, sir! Ah, sir, she was a wonderful creature!"

"She was, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, when she used to act that there character—but Lord, such a head, as I say to my sister—that there woman, sir, that murders a king between 'em."

"Oh, Lady Macbeth."

"Ah, sir, that's it—Lady Macbeth. I used to get up with the butcher behind her carriage when she acted, and I used to see her looking quite wild, and all the people quite frightened."

"Aha, my lady," says I, "if it wasn't for my meat, though, you wouldn't be able to do that!"—Youth's Companion.

Water-Elephants.

The existence of a hitherto unknown beast, the water-elephant, has recently been discovered. No specimen of this animal has as yet been brought to Europe, nor has its skeleton come into the hands of scientists, and not so much as a photograph of it is known to exist. M. Le Petit, an explorer, came across five on the banks of a lake in the Upper Congo. As soon as he approached they dived into the water and swam off, leaving only their trunks above the water. They are, he says, about six and a half feet high, with long necks, short ears, and short trunks. Judging from their tracks, their feet differ considerably from those of the ordinary elephant.

His Bones Easily Broken.

Known as the "glass-bone boy," James Loertsch of Caldwell, N. J., kept up his record when he fell on the sidewalk in front of his home a few days ago and broke his arm. This is James' eighth bone-breaking feat in the eight years of his life and his third within the last five months. In September he broke his right leg in kicking a football. In November, when he was standing in a wagon, the horse moved unexpectedly and jolted him to the wagon bed. The jolt did not roll him from the wagon, but broke his left arm.

Remains in Yucatan.

There is in Yucatan a chain of ruins 300 miles long, where once stood buildings richly decorated and erected with a vast amount of architectural knowledge. The buildings belonged to the stone age, when the remarkable figures in stone were carved with pieces of flint. The people of this age had not the use of either bronze or iron.
